Paris, October 26 .- In the Chamber of Deputies to-day Mr. Delocle interpellated the Ministers, asking them to explain their policy toward Egypt; the position they had taken on the questions at issue with Morocco in the matter of the Touat cases, and the alleged British intrigues on the Tonquin frontier.

M. Delafosse also demanded that the Ministry make explanations in regard to the relations between France and Italy. He found fault with the Government for taking part in the recent Garibaldi fetes at Nice, and also for not affording protection to the French pilgrims to Rome and for the needless and annoying prosecution of the Archbishop of Aix.

M. Ribot, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, in reply, informed the deputies that the government of Morocco had been informed that France would not tolerate any interference at Touat, as the district was plainly within the zone of French influence. In regard to Egypt, he declared that France had not abandoned any of her former rights, and recent events were tending to increase French influence there. The prochement between Russia The rap France, he said, astonished nobody. It was simply in consequence of old sym-pathies and a community of interests, and formed a fresh guarantee of peace.
The Minister justified the nations taking that it was in celebration of the memory of a man who had fought for France. THE TROUBLES IN ROME.

Regarding the troubles which accompanied the French religious pilgrimages to Rome, he said that the agitation provoked in Italy by these pilgrim incidents was altogether out of proportion to any offence that the pilgrims committed during their presence in Italy. An Attempt to Blow Up the "National Press "-Narrow Escapes.

DURLIN, IRELAND, October 26,-Great excitement was caused in this city this evening by an apparent attempt to blow up the office of the National Press, the organ of the McCarthyites. The mem-bers of the staff of the paper were just on the point of beginning the night's work when a bomb fell in the area in front of the windows on Abbey street, where the editors' rooms are situated. The bomb exploded with a tremendous report, but fortunately there was no one in these particular rooms at the time and consequently no one was hurt. If the missile had been intended to injure anybody in the editorial room there is no doubt the effort would have been preeminently successful, for the windowglass was broken, the casing shattered, and the furniture in the room badly damaged. The offices in the basement were also badly damaged and windows in all the adjacent houses were broken. The authorities thus far are without any cine whatever. The fumes from the explosion had a very offensive odor. DYNAMITE IN THE BOME.

THE BOUGHNESS OF THE GAME. The apprehension of many people in regard to the roughness of the "Rugby" game are no doubt well grounded, or at least were well grounded a few years ago —say in 1835—when the teams in "the American Intercollegiate Association" played the game with such deadly energy, resorting to questionable tricks and manoeuvers, that such disgraceful scenes were witnessed in the field that the profeasors of Harvard arose in their might of authority and prohibited the men from taking part in the intercollegiate

The rushers face each other and toe a line in the centre of the field. The side which has won the toss and thereby gains the "kick-off" ordinarily endeavors to "dribble" the ball backward to the quarter back, who, if he gets the chance, starts for his opponent's goal, but if hard pressed and "interfered" with tries to pass it to one of the rushers, and in this way it is carried to the goal. And this is one of the few glumpes that the versar greader of history the French was, thought it has been claimed for them that they even won honor out of deeds, and never lost but one standard, and that be an angle surprise, which offers.

The inspiration and motive of the Franco-Irish troops was their lovaity to the Stuarts, whom they regarded as their printing surprise, which offers the privalent of James Hanold Hano

One of the most gallant exploits of the Irish was achieved the tollowing year by the regiments of Dillon and Bourke at what was called the "Surprise of Crmona." That ancient city of Italy, so noted for the deheious harmony that artistic hands have drawn from its matchless violins, was doomed to rue the harsh discords of war when the war-like Eugene, flushed with his former successes, critically concluded that as the key of the French position it must be taken, and by a The reorganization of these Irish troops necessitated the sacrifice of many military grades and scores of the field officers had to serve as subalterns, while the relation of the pay to the French standard was calculated to be very galling to soldiers who had suffered so greatly and had come prepared to make greater sacrifices.

"The King," says the chronicle, "was greatly touched by the cheerfulness with which his subjects submitted to this, and solemnly in a written document promised them full compensation when he should be restored to his throne."

The names of the corps here enumerated will be recognized in the various battles and combats in which the Irish troops figured for nearly a century, but the reader must bear in mind when the Irish of four battalions are referred to in Flanders there were as many more in Spain or Italy, the names of the different officers often being confounded with the locality of the different ent corps; as, for instance, the regiment of Mountcashel is sometimes gazetted by the name of its colonel, while that of Dillon may be in one place, and Count Dillon, who gave it its name, in quite another.

Bearing this in mind the reader will get a clear idea of the organization of the Irish brigades from the following synopsis:

The "reform" or reorganization had reduced the number of regiments, and constant changes during fifty years had of course changed the nomenciature of the corps.

But this was the Irish army as it was mustered for the first service under King Louis of France in April, 1652, for an expedition against Eugland headed by the dethroned Stuart.

An army of 30,000 men was assembled on the coast of Northandy, including all the Irish troops under the command of the veteran Marshal Belletonds, with Lord Lucan and the Duke of Berwick as his lieutenants. with increased numbers, until it seemed as if the enemy could have bodily carried away the frail resistance before them. The Baron, caraged at the opposition he met, looked around for some other point to attack and perceived that the battery of St. Peter's, to the right of the barricade, had been left without even a guard, and at it he at once sent his grenadiers. But the Austrians had scarcely entered the works when the two Irish battalions came up at a run, and without halting to form they gave the intruders a close volley and rushed on them with the Pneumonia.

Have you noticed the unusual number of colds possessed by your acquaintances this year? There seems to be no particular reason why the fall of this year should be more trying than usual, but nevertheless it is a fact. Those who know something of these matters say that this extraordinary prevalence of colds is the forerunner of another visitation of the grlp. Whether it may turn out so or not, a thing every one should do is to get rid of a cold as soon as possible on account of the danger to which a person with a "little cold" is exposed. Pneumonia nobody wishes so face, and it is no exaggeration to state that 80 per cent. of deaths from this cause could have been averted if the colds out of which they grow had been cured.

By far the best method of ridding oneself of a cold is to take a little pure stimulant in water and keep warm after having done so. The greatest care and prompt measures should be taken at the slightest sign of the approach of pneumonia. If you have a tickling in the throat, tightness of the chest, pain in the head, a chilly feeling or should the death of the cold, immediately and the pains throughout the body, immediately and the production of the chest, pain in the head, a chilly feeling or should be death.

New York and other cities are now agitating the very serious question of their water supply. Investigation has brought to light the fact that impure matters, in spite of expensive attempts at prevention, will find their way into the streams from which the water supply is drawn. It has been thought for years that a stream running in the open air will cleanse itself partly by settling of the impure matter and partly by acration, but it has recently been decided by the proper authorities that no such process of self-purification takes place.

As in most places the water supply is drawn from streams which pass through land where cattle, horses, or sheep graze, a very general movement has taken place throughout the United States, towards the purification of water for drinking purposes in the home itself. The most popular and effective method is to mix a little pure whiskey with the water; filtration it seems, does not get gid of the presence of poissonous nitrates. It is to be impressed on all those who take this method of preserving their health that the whiskey used must be pure. Duffy's Pure Mait is highly recommended by leading deciors and scientists as being the purest medicinal whiskey on the market. Blues, head-aches, nervousness, liability to sore throat, pecular pains in the back, and many other small but troublesome illa frequently have their origin in impure drinking-water.
